A Standard of Unparalleled Quality and Integrity

When Erford L. Page married Cornelia J. Russell in 1889, he had little idea that his marital partnership would evolve into a business partnership. But that's what happened. That is how the Page Seed Company was born.

To trace the history of this important upstate New York manufacturer, we have to start in 1886. That year, Erford Page, together with his uncle, Albert Page, joined forces in a grocery business in Greene, New York. But groceries weren't enough to satisfy E.L. Page, so a few years later, he also opened Page's Star Store, a first class general store located in the center of the village of Greene, New York.

After Mr. Page's marriage to Cornelia, he built a greenhouse at their home. His hobby was growing ferns and plants and the greenhouse was to indulge that hobby. It wasn't long before he discovered that a hobby can become a business. A plant and seed department was installed in his store that gained popularity around the surrounding area.

By 1896 Erford and Cornelia formed a mail order business dealing in vegetable and flower seeds, plants and bulbs. From this to the packet seed business was an easy step and The Page Seed Company was established. In 1897, they took their first venture into distribution. They sent Nasturtium and Sweet Pea seed packets at 5 cents per packet to 100 merchants in neighboring towns. Sales were increasing and space was becoming limited.

With their success, in 1902 the Page's Star Store closed its doors and the Page Seed Company was moved to a 26 acre parcel on the east side of the village, where the business continues today.

The Page Seed Company still maintains its standard of quality seeds as set forth in the very first printed catalog: "No better seeds can be bought than those we sent out, and are true to our name." Here we are in our 127th year and we continue to provide our customers with the highest quality products at a fair price, with on-time delivery and the utmost respect for our employees and customers.

We thank you for your trust and business and promise to provide you with the best as our founders did in 1896.

Sincerely,
The Management Team
